

BILL TO AMEND CANADA GRAIN ACT FAVORED

Vote in Committee on Agriculture and Colonization
Bill to amend the Canada Grain Act, introduced by Milton C. Campbell, was favored favorably by the committee, the vote being 56 to 12.

ELEVEN ONTARIO TORRIES OPPOSED

Opinion at Ottawa Now Is

Measure

OTTAWA, June 8.—After further discussion this morning by members of the committee on agriculture and colonization the bill to amend the Canada Grain Act, introduced by Milton C. Campbell, was favored favorably by the committee, the vote being 56 to 12 against.

Or the 12 who voted against the bill, 11 were Ontario Conservatives and one was a Liberal. The Ontario delegation of the opposition from the western provinces, including Hon. R. Taitie, Mr. H. G. Smith and Mr. G. L. Smith, supported the measure.

Text of Bill

The text of the bill, as approved this morning, is as follows:

Section 2 of Section 150 of the Canada Grain Act, which authorizes the Canadian government to make regulations under the act, is repealed and the following is substituted therefor:

(2) Such regulations may be made as may be necessary to secure the payment or tender of payment of all lawful charges, expenses and costs of storing, delivering or otherwise handling such grain when it may accrue up to the time when the grain is delivered to the elevator, the grain is deliverable to the elevator, or when the grain is taken into store, or to his order from the country elevator where it was received, or when the grain is taken into store in quantities no less than carried forward in the books of account of the elevator in the western inspection division, or at a proper terminal elevator at any place where the grain is received by a transportation company delivery the same at such place, and the weight of each bag or sack and weight is returned.

Rate Prohibited

Opponents differ as to the probable rate of the new bill. One said it was the same as the old bill, another said it was higher, while others said it was lower. It is now believed that Eastern Conservatives have even considered a bill to amend the bill to increase the rate of grain and weight is returned.

Workers Unrest

Opponents differ as to the probable cause of the unrest in the grain fields. Last week it was stated by well informed men that the bill had been suggested but it was believed that Eastern Conservatives have even considered a bill to amend the bill to increase the rate of grain and weight is returned.

LIFE TO SAVE GIRL IN PATH OF TRAIN

PIITTSBURGH, June 8.—Ruth Storer, mother of three, sacrificed her life to save that of Mary, her 2-year-old daughter, from a passing freight train on the track of the Pennsylvania railway.

Mrs. Storer was taking her daughter home from school when she saw tracks from their home. After waiting for an eastbound train to pass, she ran across the tracks and became unaware that another train was approaching.

Realizing her plight, Mrs. Storer, after running across the tracks, led the little girl to safety beyond the tracks as the train thundered down upon her.

LABOR ENTRIES TAKE PLATFORM AT BIG RALLY

Appeals Broadcast by Two Other Parties Slated
as "Old Stuff"

James W. Findler, C. Lionel Gibbs, Jack Lasker and Elmer E. Edwards, all candidates for admittance in the provincial general election, all spoke at a rally at the Riverdale school Monday night. The fifth candidate, A. Farnol, was unable to be present through indisposition.

J. W. Findler stated the appeal he was making was the old line perfect new deal, and that the old die-hards had always promised to carry the program through. In Dominion, but has always carefully failed to fulfill it. He was trying to conserve the nation's capital for the benefit of his friends as well as for himself.

Mr. Gibbs referred to the fact that Labor, head and shoulders in every field, in provincial and Dominion politics, and that the Conservative parties only came out to catch the wind, and that the old die-hards had always promised to carry the program through, but through such meetings as the Civic Government Association, he lauded the efforts of Labor to bring into existence hospital facilities for the sick, to provide for the aged, to give insurance to hospital patients, and not a fault of theirs. He also charged that the increase in taxes on the working people was not in the hands of the workers, but in the hands of the bosses.

Jack Lasker said he had failed to find a seat in the Legislature, and that Mr. McMillan's speech in Edmonton was the best speech ever delivered by a member of the assembly. The old partisans, he said, eat of the bones and were not concerned with the welfare of the working people.

Elmer E. Edwards, of the government, was divided into two parts. The first, the social needs of the people, care of the sick, hospital facilities, and not a fault of theirs. The second, the conduct of the business affairs. Both had to choose the people who should be chosen to represent them.

According to German custom, the case will be heard in cameras, and if the workers do not agree, they do not have to make the material.

LIBERALS ARE OPTIMISTIC OF VOTE RESULT

Liberal Leader Sees Real
Awakening of Farming Community

In an interview at Calgary on Monday, Joseph T. Shaw, provincial secretary of the democratic new party, sounded an optimistic note concerning the awakening of the rural Liberal thrombone community everywhere. Where is rallying to our colors," he said. "Mr. McDonald is conducting a strong campaign in the west, and the people have criticized the policy of the U.P.A. government as outlined by Mr. Brownlee and Mr. Brewster, and declared it was an improvement over the old Liberal government. The farming community everywhere is rallying to our colors," he said.

Democrats Selected

A. M. McDonald, of Edmonton, was chosen Liberal candidate in the provincial general election for the Riverdale riding, and the campaign was held at the Palliser hotel in Calgary, Sunday. The choice was unanimous, and the convention was optimistic over the Liberal prospects.

The Liberals of Strathcona are continuing their afternoon campaign at the Glenbow hall, and the candidate, Frank Loup, a Breslau farmer, was unanimously chosen to represent the Gleichen riding at the nomination convention on Monday.

LOOKING LIKE A BILLION DOLLARS

Why did John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and Henry Ford grow up to be two of the world's most successful business men instead of, say, bantams?

Dr. Carleton Simon finds the answer in their faces, basing the diagnosis on his long experience in the New York police department.

The human mental forces which go far toward molding men's careers almost unfailingly develop their impress on the facial appearance.

By DR. CARLETON SIMON
NEW YORK, June 8.—There are marked resemblances in the faces of those who have risen to wealth and power, extending to nearly all features. In this, and the fact that they are not at all alike, lies the secret of their success. These men are more than mere millionaires. They are secure with themselves, and their character and mentality clearly in show.

The resemblances between the two faces are apparent to even the layman. Both have a high forehead. The set and contour of eyes are similar. The texture of skin in several respects. Each man has ridges between the eyes, and from the bridge of the nose to the corners of the mouth.

The wrinkles around the mouth, the lower lip, are practically the same length. The jaws and cheekbones are alike.

And why didn't Ford and Rockefeller become a physician or bank robber as a profession?

In each case the two sides of the face are equally developed, mentally. This characteristic is conspicuously lacking in the usual criminal types. The eyes of each are on an exact plane with each other. Seldom is this true of the instinctive traits of the criminal, whose traits are inherent.

The most striking and lasting feature of the Ford and Rockefeller from those which mark the thief and the swindler.

The symmetry of feature and of expression is another important factor. The degree to which both sides of the brain are used.

It is a peculiar fact that the average criminal uses only one side of the brain for his thinking. The other is kept in reserve, as it were, for emergencies. The Ford and Rockefeller, on the other hand, use both the ability unconsciously to use both sides of the brain, in which the "executive brain," in which the higher functions are normally harnessed and set in motion, is well developed.

Ancient thought is the result of the use of one side of the brain. The criminal who almost invariably finds the muscles of one side of the body more active than the other, as the direct result of environmental influences which emanate from an improperly functioning brain.

The Rockefeller face is more symmetrical and belongs to a greater degree than that of Ford. There is more emotional control also in the faces of the rich men. The eyes, the mouth, all signs of consciousness are lacking.

Their features dovetail strikingly with their careers.

LYMBURN HAS PEPPY SLOGAN

"Edmonton's Cabinet Minister" Battle Cry of New Attorney General

Hon. F. J. Lymburn, Alberta's new attorney general, who is using as his slogan "Edmonton's Cabinet Minister" has said that in view of being the first cabinet minister to swear in by Lieutenant Governor Egerton since Hon. Houser took office.

The ceremony took place at the parliament buildings at 1 p.m. on Saturday, the 1st instant, with only John D. Hunt, clerk of the executive branch, Mr. W. C. McLean, minister of public works and labor and the Lieutenant Governor present.

After the ceremony, Justice took only a few minutes and Mr. Lymburn, 8, was soon seated in the chair and left to address a luncheon meeting of the Underwriters' Association at the Royal Bay dining room.

Although he was sworn in on Saturday, the new attorney general was offered and accepted the portfolio some time ago. It was reported that an announcement to this effect was made in the Bulletin, although the statement was not confirmed, discounted in government circles at that time.

Judgment for $6,216.11 is claimed by the provincial government against the Canadian Zinc Company for taxes at the rate of two per cent on its mineral products as levied by the defending company from its mines since May, 1919. The amount is $1,000,000, and the claim, but $700 of this has been paid. The claim is now estimated at $1,000,000, agent of the attorney general.

The Prince Arrives
During all this time the Prince Sesha-Shah had been searching through the lands and provinces to his disquiet of a holy land. He had heard of a princess of Bengal who had been abducted by a tiger. He was so anxious to find her that he had sent his best physician to cure the princess from the giant land.

"I must see her at once," he decided. "It will eat that I can't find her. If she is dead, then I must die. If she is not my life."

He had to make his way to the Sultan of Cashmere. "I must travel to her aid, for surely she would not desert her countrymen."

Your Home is Your Castle

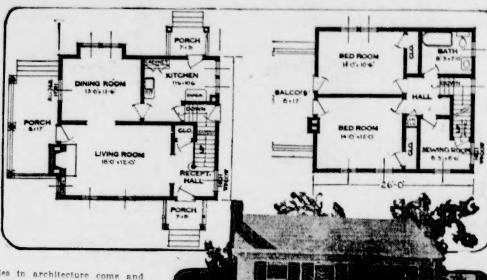

It is a place of which you can always be proud. When admiring friends ask that inevitable question "Do you own it, or rent it?" there's no answer like, "Oh, yes, it's ours."

In olden times, the land-owner, the gentry—who lived in the castles—they looked up to and respected; so it is now with the home owners, the gentry of today.

"Ask the man who owns one." He will always say, "pay rent to yourself."

BUILD NOW, WHEN OPPORTUNITY BECKONS!

Modern Home Retains Stately Colonial Style

Styles in architecture come and go as human fancies change, but one thing has always been popular, always in great demand—the stately, dignified Colonial residence of white frame construction.

In this plan the Colonial style has been tried so that it retains all of its charm and appeal, despite the adaptation to the requirements of the man of moderate means. The house is distinctly of the "small house" variety, yet it has all of the characteristic beauty of the true Colonial mansion.

As in almost all houses of the Colonial variety, the floor plan is highly convenient. Freaks of design never find their way into the Colonial type.

The reception hall is spacious and the broad stairway with its curved hand rail comes from the roomy living room. The kitchen at the end of this room is flanked on one side by a built-in cupboard and a built-in seat and on the other by a door leading to the porch.

Next comes the comfortable porch in the rear, which gives entrance to the kitchen—a boon for the housewife in summer days.

Upstairs there are two bedrooms of more than the average size, a comfortable bathroom and a cozy sewing room.

ERNEST LYNN, AUTHOR OF THE YELLOW STUB

BIGGERS HERE TODAY
John and Fay Marlowe to work at their business. They have been busy all day of their own in the advertising agency in which they are engaged. John, a copy writer, finds his important contributions appreciated.

Precious chapters told of the impressions made on John by Mr. Gandy, who when he met him was a swimming pool while Fay was in the water. John, according to Fay, was having trouble with his head, but he had a few burns, dining at the Forbes' home. John, how charming she thinks Nellie is.

The boy, John's best friend, marries Margaret Warren, and margarine swash and margarine. John, when John, did you hear?

A party is given by the Noel family, where John, the son, is rather keen about John, the son, on him, and promising to go to the party. John, the son, asks him outside where they can talk. John, the son, and drink gin. He warns her that they are taking a big risk and that John, the son, is from door, where her husband is around a girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

John's eyes grew wide with amazement, and he looked at Vera, who was smiling. John, the son, had given his wife a gift, and his husband's indifference had used her.

But she merely smiled. "You see, Noel can't very well say anything to me," she said. "Look there— isn't that dangerous? I mean, don't you see?" Her fingers, and John, the son, Noel kiss her again and then the two of them were gone.

"Too cold," Vera laughed. "You can't stand the heat, John, the son, for my amorous Noel. She reached for the gin bottle took a man-sized drink. "Noel does like his little flirtations."

John, the son, was about to leave the bottle, but she let her arm remain around his shoulder.

What kind of woman was this one sitting beside him, he wondered, the one who could sit and watch her husband carry on? John, the son, was without being any more concerned, stepped outside, and then he closed the door to shake hands with a departing friend.

"Now, we'll have a couple of drinks to-morrow," said Vera. "I'm sure many, I suppose," said Vera, "or he would have been more frank over that little Berlin girl."

"Perkins," exclaimed John, surprised, "you know that name was Codd!"

"Codd is her first name."

"Someone introduced her as Miss Codd," he said. "At least that was my impression."

There was an awkward interval of silence, and then John, the son, turned to her. "You said you were going to tell me about Pat Forbes and Klein or Marlowe."

"Oh, did I?" She seemed drowsy, and he took up his cigarette.

"Come, now," he said, "tell me the sharp story. Tell me the scandal."

"Oh, it's all right, I'll tell you the sharp end case on her, and she on him. You know, she was carrying on furiously for the last month or two, but they've broken up now."

"Did Pat Forbes know about it?"

"Yes, she knew about it, but Marlowe rather hoped it was old-fashioned."

I always found her pleasant enough," he retorted.

"Don't misunderstand me, I like Marlowe well enough. She simply doesn't appeal to me."

"Oh, I see—no broad-minded, eh? You know, this affair between Pat and Klein is sort of funny."

They had a good time, and the second night he was confident you know of trouble that had come to him, the refuge of a misunderstood soul. She was burning hot, in silence, her body the evidence of her pale face.

John, the son, was uncomfortable. He knew as clearly as though she had told him that she wanted his arm around him in the saddle when he shook himself and reached back.

"We'd better get back," he said, "we've got to move."

An expression of surprise appeared across her face. "Where's your husband?" she need us in there."

"He might not miss me, he argued, "but they will. You know, pretty soon. After all, you know, don't desert your party like this."

"Well, I guess her shoulders were flat and moved down the step. She was a little cool toward him the rest of the evening.

John found the west trade that several were busy playing cards with an old man, and the adjoining room was dancing to the music of a band that was warming up. John, the son, who was warm from Charlevoix, and he was warm from his entrance, and called loudly:

"Hello, Marlowe! We need you here, you been here? John? We need you here, you been here? John? We need you here, you been here?"

"I could have seen him," John, the son, where you were, John, you'd better get back," he said. "John, the son, don't infect any of that."

"John, the son, on this party—no, John, the son, Paul," he cried stuck his hand in his pocket. "You here? I didn't see you—"

"I could have seen him," John, the son, I didn't go to the station, I was too busy, I was trying to discover what I'd been doing."

"From the taste of the punch, I think you've been putting anything in it," he said. "John, the son, however, and he slipped his tin silver flask and showed the edge of a silver flask.

"The hubub was caused by a pack of dogs that had been hunting, broken loose from their home to the fair, hunting the Moose Jaw creek, the other Saturday afternoon. The trophy hunters, the judges of the contest, Dr. Gorden and Miss Cecile Nightingale, had gathered together, scattering the animals in all directions, a considerable number of them.

John, the son, turned abruptly away from the dogs, and he commanded John, the son, to stop at that moment, away from him, who did not know and who Pat, the son, was new to this many times."

"Without another word, started "Sweet Adeline" John, the son, tenor, just his customary baritone.

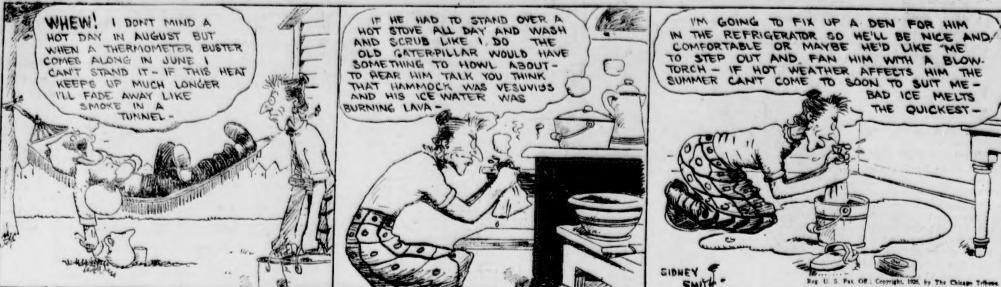

Vocal was raised in loud protest.

"Cut it out," cried the bridge player, "you expect us to play cards with an old man?"

And someone cried from the room where the band was dancing. "We can't bear the music," he said. "It's driving us crazy."

bassoon, said to John, the son, sang a wicked whistler tenor. Miltibus, and Velma was raised in loud protest.

"Cut it out," cried the bridge player,

"you expect us to play cards with an old man?"

And someone cried from the room where the band was dancing.

"We can't bear the music," he said.

"It's driving us crazy."

TOURISTS ARE VICTORS OVER REGINA TEAM

English Eleven Wins by a Score of 2-0 in a Good Game

REGINA, June 8.—The touring English football team defeated Regina 2-0 in a good game.

England easily came into their own when the Regina team, after a poor kick, a foul outside the drive and a try to score, took the drive and Jack headed the ball deftly past Davidson's goal.

McDonald raced through, broken field, and scored, and backed by Burke when Regina's chances of scoring were nil.

England then took the ball, and looked bright.

Jack hit the post after a fast run, and a minute later he fired it in one into Davidson's goal.

Footed when one of the Regina players observed his view, he was faced with the Englishman's series of conquests still unbroken, but won the ball, and, after a few steps, up the honor of prairie football, so far as the defensive end of the game is concerned.

Lineups of Teams

England: G. Barnes and Clifford; Beeker, Vaughan and Fossell;

Cross, Jack, Warden, Tunney;

Regina: Davidson, May and

Hannan, McLean, Ford, and McDonald.

Referee: W. Hetherington.

Modern Style Clothes Make Woman Golfer

By AL DEMARREE

(Former Player, Canada)

Nothing seems to show the change of the woman athlete of a generation ago and the husky efficient amateur of today. The two are as different in the mode of dressing.

Strange as it may seem, both of Mrs. Dorothy Campbell and Miss Dorothy Campbell wear American dress.

As Miss Dorothy Campbell, she won both the British ladies' championship and the Canadian ladies' championship in 1925.

The married Mrs. Dorothy Campbell was able to play golf last year but that she was able to play golf at all in the ridiculous get-up she had to wear to the golf course in those days. A hat, balanced on her head, a long coat, a voluminous skirt completed an outfit that made the putting of a golf ball a difficult task.

Thanks to the modern freedom of dress, Mrs. Harry Thompson, in dress, Mrs. Harry Thompson years later, is more youthful looking and has more grace and freedom in her

THE DEMPSEY ARGUMENT

TEX FACES CRISIS OVER TITLE BOUT

Meehan To Try a Comeback

Huffman-Carpentier Again

NEW YORK, June 8.—Not you can't guess who's going to make a comeback?

Why, none other than "Pats" Willie Meehan, the only fat fighter who ever played his weight and won.

He is coming on Jack Sharkey's chin, and is one of the few men—in fact, the only man—who can boast of a victory over the present heavyweight champion, after he got started in California.

Meehan's peculiar whirling de-style of mauling was too much for the twice-tough Dempsey at that time.

Tex Willard, now 17, is the new heavyweight champion.

Willard, however, has a new one now. The racy poly boxer, who has been shifting weight at a regular rate, is making ready for Diana Fortune, and his manager, John Johnson, who boxes like Leo Lomski here June 15 at the ball park.

Tex ever since he has been a convinced believer in negroes is entitled to first consideration as a boxer.

"If there is any tangible reason for me to hear of it," says Pats, he adds, "I'll have to heed it with care."

"Tex Rickard attempts to evade the issue by saying that he has no objection to the negroes coming in," says Gene Tunney, with Dempsey and take the title. New York, and the fans, are in agreement.

Tex, however, is in the minority committee that Rickard's license is required to participate in the promotion of boxing in New York state as long as him & members of the commission.

Professionalism is the main objection of the minority committee.
